

The Small Print

Participants are asked to observe conduct appropriate to Friends' principles. We hope that Friends will take care that their personal behavior is bound by a respect for the sensitivities of others at this retreat and in the host environment, and to remember that our individual actions reflect not only on ourselves, but also on the Religious Society of Friends.

As a general rule, we make decisions through traditional Quaker process. We believe that it is an important aspect of Quakerism that must be a part of our work together. Accordingly, we typically have one Meeting for Business on the first night of the retreat to set the guidelines for the retreat, and then again on the last day to begin planning for the next retreat.

We are an active group, and typically play plenty of games (Wink, Charades, Mafia, etc) during the retreat. Come prepared to have fun and maybe even learn a little about yourself and others!
